Young Onions for Weak Nerves and Low Vitality But Bad for the Full-blooded

STRAWBERRY MOSTLY IS WOOD

Its Acid Makes It Good for the Bilious But for Others It Should Be Used Sparingly

LETTUCE IS THE BEST BET

It Is a Gentle Soporific in Essential Oil and Generally Soothing Without Vinegar

BY FREDERICK J. HASKIN

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 17.—If you have weak nerves and low vitality generally, eat spring onions regularly in small quantities, and if you are unable to sleep, eat them before retiring, for the essential oil of the onion is an excellent soporific. But if you are a full-blooded person, inclined to be feverish or bilious, the onion is not for you. It will make you sneeze and perspire and be uncomfortable generally.

The onion is by no means alone among fresh vegetables in having marked medicinal properties. Nearly all of them have strong acids and essential oils which produce various effects upon the body. Yet most persons eat them indiscriminately at this time of the year.

The strawberry, with its heavy content of citric and malic acid is a specific which bilious people will find beneficial, but which should be eaten sparingly by others. There is little food value in the berry. Wood and acid are its chief constituents.

Asparagus contains two active medicinal principles. Its essential substance, asparagin, stimulates the kidneys, while a green resin called mannite which it contains has a sedative effect upon the heart and will relieve palpitation or nervous excitement of that organ.

Common rhubarb is another vegetable which should be used with care, especially by gouty persons. It contains a large amount of oxalic acid which combines with alkalies to induce a gouty condition.

Wild Cherry Poisons

A naturally poisonous plant that has been made very edible by cultivation is the celery. Wild celery growing in the sunlight is a deadly plant; but the cultivated variety when buried and bleached becomes not only a dainty vegetable, but a very salutary one. It contains a great deal of sulphur, and for this reason is good for rheumatism. A famous vegetarian writing in the London Times asserts that on a diet of celery, rheumatism is impossible. Celery also has a sedative effect upon the nerves. There are some very sensitive persons who can not eat it; but for most it is an excellent vegetable, either cooked or raw.

Probably one of the best of American food habits is the abundant eating of lettuce in the summer-time. This plant contains lactucarin which has a genuine narcotic effect. In the wild lettuce this principle is so strong that a narcotic may easily be expressed from the stem of the plant; but in the cultivated variety there is just enough of it left to make the vegetable mildly soporific. It is also mildly aperient, and has a generally soothing effect. It should not, however, be eaten with vinegar as this acid will neutralize its best qualities.

Water Cress Without Honor

Water cress is a vegetable which has never been properly appreciated in this country. There are few restaurants where you can order a watercress salad, and few homes where the plant is regularly served. Yet cress is rich in iodine, iron, phosphate and potash, and has genuine tonic value, especially in the spring. It is anti-scorbutic and is credited with being beneficial in pulmonary tuberculosis. It will clear your head in the morning and aid digestion. In England it is often eaten for breakfast with bread and butter, while in France it is popular as a salad to be eaten with meats and is generally dipped in vinegar or oil. Wild watercress has more tonic value than the cultivated plant, and you are fortunate if you have access to a spring or brook where it grows.

La Crosse Business District Turned Into Slice of Mediaeval Europe by Queen Bess and Train

UNEQUALLED IN CITY'S HISTORY

High School Triumphs in Celebration of Tercentenary of Shakespeare's Death

BUSINESS STOPS DURING PARADE

Head of Procession Arrives in Riverside Park Before Last Group Leaves the High School

Knights and ladies, slaves, senators, kings, philosophers, fairies and men-at-arms, representatives of all the elder world in an assemblage as broad and universal in its scope as the plays of the poet in whose honor it was gathered, converted humdrum Main street and familiar Riverside park into a slice of mediaeval Europe yesterday afternoon, when the high school did honor to the greatest of all playwrights. Heroes of remote and long-dead civilizations mingled in a riot of color and motion on the shore of the Mississippi, and William Shakespeare was honored in the triumph of the high school.

Between 12,000 and 15,000 people it is estimated, lined the route along which Queen Bess and her train progressed to the levee, and crowded about the dais in the park which for the afternoon was converted into the court of Old England. It was with perhaps one exception, the largest throng that any occasion ever gathered into Riverside park.

In many ways the pageant with which the high school observed the tercentenary of Shakespeare's death was the most remarkable undertaking in the city's history. Nothing in the past compares with it in magnitude, or as a spectacle. Almost a thousand youths, every one in costume historically accurate, many of them costly and gorgeous, marched or rode in the long line which stretched from the high school at Sixteenth and Cass streets clear to the river front. The head of the procession was dismounting in Riverside park when the last group of marchers was leaving the school. Two bands, one at the head and another near the end of the line, were completely out of earshot of each other.

Business Stops

All along the line of march spectators crowded the sidewalks. At every cross street automobiles were parked, and in the downtown streets the crowds were four and five deep. Employees of stores brought stools and chairs to the walks upon which they stood to look over the heads of the curb-stone throng. Business was completely at a standstill during the more than half-an-hour it took for the pageant to file by. All of the schools in the city were closed for the afternoon, and the city hall was vacated. The crowd that packed the park around the band-stand upon which were given the sports devised to entertain Elizabeth's court, rendered completely futile the efforts of four policemen detailed to handle the situation. The officers were helpless to keep back the surging thousands of grown-ups and youngsters that flooded the park and crowded up to and upon the steps and rails of the platform. Trees in the park were filled by small boys in search of reserved seats, despite the repeated forays of the police quartet to clear the branches.

The space in front of the band-stand, in which the pageant gathered as the procession broke up, was a variegated, kaleidoscopic patch of color, wondrously composed of a cosmopolitan collection of costumes, picked out by the occasional sparkle of sunlight on spear-heads, sword-hilts, helmets and armor. Roman legionaries sat with bare legs crossed, chatting idly with fairies or gnomes of mediaeval courts. Morris-dancers and merry Andrews shouted modern American slang at each other, and Queen Elizabeth's bard strummed a ukulele while his nearest neighbor hummed an English drinking song of such antiquity that its author was forgotten when Shakespeare was a boy.

CHIEF OF FIRE FIGHTERS FOR
17 YEARS DEAD

Death Comes to Nathan Bradfield at Hospital Late Last Night After Long Illness

PIONEER OF THE DEPARTMENT

Was Member of Volunteer Brigade and Driver in First Paid Department

Nathan M. Bradfield, chief of the La Crosse fire department for seventeen years, and a member of the department since its organization, died at the Lutheran hospital at 10:45 o'clock last night, following a long illness. Chief Bradfield was a resident of the city for sixty-one years. He was sixty-two years old.

A complication of kidney and heart affections caused Chief Bradfield's death. He has been seriously ill for two months. Recently he was said to be improving, but two weeks ago his condition again became dangerous.

There was sorrow in the fire department today, although news of their commander's death was not unexpected. The chief has been ill for nearly a year. For several months past he has been out of the harness, a strange thing for Chief Bradfield, who has had the reputation of eating and sleeping on the alert. Flags on all stations were half-masted today.

"He was one of the best fire chiefs in the country," said John E. Langdon, president of the fire and police commission this morning. "The commission feels a personal loss, as well as our recognition of the big loss to the city. It means a great deal to me personally, because of my intimate acquaintance with Chief Bradfield. We were members of the old volunteer department together, and I learned to respect and admire his good qualities more than twenty years ago.

Beloved by Men

"Chief Bradfield was a strict disciplinarian, and a good fireman. He was beloved by his men, and had the department at a high state of efficiency. I do not know of any other city in the country that has a more efficient department than La Crosse under the regime of Chief Bradfield. He was always on the job."

A memorial to the late chief is to be adopted by the commission at its next meeting, and it is expected that similar action will be taken by the city council.

Funeral arrangements had not been made this morning, but it was believed that an official funeral would be given the commander of the department. A fire-truck will probably carry the body of the chief to the grave, followed by most of the men of the department.

Chief Bradfield came here as a baby in arms in 1855. He was born in Ohio, August 20, 1854, the son of Nathan and Temperance Bradfield. His father was a Virginian and his mother a member of one of the first families to settle in Ohio. The chief was the fifth of a family of six children.

The chief's career in the fire department began in the days when a volunteer corps was the city's only protection against fire. He was a driver in the Third ward company. When the paid department was organized, Mr. Bradfield entered as a driver, and steadily worked up through the grades to the position he held at the time of his death. He was named captain in 1894, and five years later became chief.

Chief Bradfield was married July 16, 1889, to Miss Bertha Schilling of La Crosse. She died in 1893. One daughter, Ruth Mary, was born to the union. In 1897 Mr. Bradfield married Miss Susan Ream of Preston, Minn., who survives him.

WILSON TO WRITE
PARTY'S PLATFORM

WASHINGTON, May 20.—President Wilson will write the democratic platform that will be adopted at the St. Louis convention. If party leaders are correct in their statements today, the Missouri platform, which reflects the influence of Senator Stone, endorses Wilson's foreign policies, saying:

The United States has been kept out of war.

America's rights have been forcefully championed. A policy of non-intervention in Mexico has succeeded while prompt action followed raids across the border.

The Monroe doctrine has been upheld, fair dealing with sister American republics insisted upon and friendly feeling created.

Attention for Present Diverted from Verdun to Activity in North and in Champagne

GERMAN PLANES BOMBARD DUNKIRK

Six Persons Killed in Air Attack on French Seaport; Navarre Gets Eleventh Prize

LONDON, May 20.—The Germans are preparing for a big offensive on the Belgian front, according to several dispatches from Holland today. Trainloads of men and ammunition have been moving toward the Belgian front for the past three days. Heavy guns are reported to have been concentrated on the line from the coast to Ypres, as if for a renewal of the attempt to reach Calais. Air scouts are becoming increasingly active.

Rival Flyers Active

PARIS, May 20.—The greatest aerial activity on both sides was reported in today's official statement from the war office, announcing unsuccessful German attacks on the Belgian front and in the Champagne, but no infantry fighting at Verdun.

The attack on the Belgian front was made by German groups which attempted to cross the Yser between Steenstrate and Heteas. The advance was checked by Belgian infantry fire.

Germans Use Gas

In the Champagne, the Germans sent great gas clouds rolling down upon the French lines in preparation for an attack. The first German troops appearing behind the gas clouds were met with such a hot fire that no further attempt to advance was made.

West of the Meuse, the Germans continued to bombard with great violence the northwestern front of Verdun but there was no infantry action.

Bombard Dunkirk

German aeroplanes bombarded the French seaport town of Dunkirk and the town of Bergues, south of Dunkirk, killing six persons and wounding thirty-eight. In reprisal a French air squadron attacked enemy camps at Wyfwegen, Zarren and Hanzem and a Belgian squadron bombarded the Ghittelles aerodrome, many bombs reaching the mark.

Navarre Gets Another

Lieutenant Navarre, French air hero, brought down his eleventh German aeroplane which fell behind the French lines, near Chantancourt, northwest of Verdun. Both German occupants were captured. This was the second plane brought down by Navarre in twenty-four hours.

Lieutenant Nungesser brought down his fifth German plane which fell in the Forges wood. Three other German aeroplanes fell behind their own lines.

Repulse French Attacks

BERLIN, May 20.—Repeated French attacks against the newly conquered German positions on the Hautcourt-Esnes high road, northwest of Verdun, were repulsed, the war office announced this afternoon. In the Argonne German patrol parties penetrated French second line trenches, taking some prisoners.

FORMER BOSS OF
CINCINNATI DIES
PARALYSIS VICTIM

CINCINNATI, May 20.—George B. Cox, former political ruler of this city and one of the republican leaders of Ohio, died at his home in Clifton early today.

Cox suffered a stroke of paralysis on February 29 and had been unconscious since. Within the last few days pneumonia developed and he began sinking rapidly.

Cox, born in Cincinnati, April 29, 1853, was the last of the municipal bosses. He himself acknowledged the title.

From bootblack and butcher's boy, he rose until he became the most powerful man in the government of Ohio, naming mayors, judges, congressmen and having much to do with the fortunes of presidents.

Magistrate Says Love Missives of Dead Lambert Girl Will Not Be Read in Trial of Lake Forest Youth

DENIES MISS YOUKER CALLED

Orpet Brands the Story as Falsehood "Lady in White" Visited Him at Jail

COURTROOM, WAUKEGAN, Ill., May 20.—A kindly judge who has two daughters of his own and knows how a woman acts when she is in love stood out today as a barrier to unfolding before a jury the heart-song of Celestia Youker, the girl who loved Will Orpet, who is on trial for the murder of Marian Lambert, his will-o'-the-wisp sweetheart.

He is Judge Charles H. Donnelly, presiding at Orpet's trial. Today he declared that the sixty love letters written by Miss Youker to Orpet will not be read in the trial unless it is absolutely necessary to establish the state's case against the youth.

State's Attorney Dady considers some of the letters necessary evidence to establish what he believes was the motive for Marion's murder—Orpet's love for Miss Youker and his desire to be rid of Marion. Orpet vehemently denied today that Celestia Youker called on him at his cell. He labelled the story a falsehood and was backed up by his counsel and Sheriff Griffen.

Celestia Youker, the "little woman in white," whose love for young Orpet drove him to commit the crime in Helms woods, according to the state, will be forced to take the stand and be numbered among the accusers of the boy she openly adored.

Four Jurors Chosen
The first panel of four jurors in the murder trial of William H. Orpet was completed half an hour after court opened today. The men were immediately sworn in.

They are Len Barthell, age 36, married, has five children. He lives in Antioch. He has no opposition to circumstantial evidence or to capital punishment.

G. A. Thompson, age 56, married, with eight children, five boys and three girls, ranking in age from 14 to 26. He is a farmer from the town of Newport. He lived in Zion City four years before moving to Newport.

H. F. King, aged 24, married, with one daughter, a year and a half old. He is clerk in a lumber yard at Area.

T. W. Willoughby, Deerfield, the fourth man chosen. He is a farmer with three children, the oldest a girl of eight years.

Eighty-five of the last list of 100 veniremen called for the trial were left when court opened today. Three tentatively accepted jurors were in the box. Two hundred and seventy-three veniremen have been examined to date.

The work of selecting the second panel of jurors went on until 1:00 o'clock this afternoon. Then Judge Donnelly adjourned court.

Sold Large Bottle
MADISON, Wis., May 20.—Chas. W. Hassinger, former Madison drug clerk, admitted today that he did sell William H. Orpet, former University of Wisconsin student, charged with the murder of Marian Lambert, Lake Forest, an empty bottle a day or two before the youth went to Lake Forest on the fatal trip.

"I did sell Orpet an empty bottle," said Hassinger, "but it was not a two ounce bottle. It was a larger one. I do not remember the size, but it was larger. Of that I am sure."

"Why did you make a statement that you sold Orpet a two-ounce bottle?" he was asked.

"The detectives took me off my feet," he said. "They had me up in the air."

The drug clerk has changed his attitude regarding his appearance at Waukegan as a witness at the trial. "I will probably go if they want me to," he said.

DAWSON RESIGNS

MADISON, Wis., May 20.—William Dawson, for the past four years and a half chief clerk of the highway commission, today resigned to accept the field secretaryship of the church commission of the Episcopal church which is undertaking a five year campaign for the erection of a $250,000 and endowment here.

Sibley Says Bandits Have Been Dispersed and Work of the Expedition Has Been Done

MUCH HAS BEEN ACCOMPLISHED

Bandits Driven 125 Miles Below Border and American Captives Have Been Released

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, May 20.—Withdrawal of the second American expedition from Mexico to Boquillas, Texas, will be accomplished in a few days.

Colonel Sibley believes his mission of dispersing the bandits who raided Boquillas and Glenn Springs has been accomplished and he has notified headquarters of his intention to return to the border. For this reason, the Sixth cavalry, which withdrew from the first expedition yesterday, will be utilized as a Big Bend patrol instead of reinforcing the first expedition.

Reports today showed that in the recent brush of the second expedition with Mexicans four bandits were wounded and two captured. They had held as prisoner a Carranza commander's son, thus showing they were not allied with the Carranzistas.

The second expedition has dispersed the bandits, driving them something more than 125 miles below the border. Further, it has released Deemer and Payne, the American captives taken in the Big Bend raids. This, taken with the fact that the Mexican country below the Big Bend is arid at this time of year, leads to the view that no considerable bandit gangs can long carry on any operations from there.

Official Report
WASHINGTON, May 20.—Official report of Colonel Sibley's intention to return from Mexico to the border reached the war department today.

Cavalry Reaches Columbus
COLUMBUS, N. M., May 20.—In terrific dust storm, a large body of American cavalry rode into camp yesterday from Old Mexico. "They immediately prepared to go into camp here."

Withdrawal of the Sixth cavalry from interior Mexico is part of the new patrol plan decided on by the United States, according to information here. By this plan, heavy patrols to cover the entire 200 miles of the Mexican border are to be inaugurated. This will be the principal feature of the new police policy.

Father Marquette's Discovery of Mississippi Will Be Reproduced at Myrick Park

Scenes from the earliest history of Wisconsin will be repeated in Myrick park next Friday afternoon, when a pageant play planned by Miss Cora Desmond of the high school faculty, under the title "Wisconsin Then and Now." The pageant is to be given under the auspices of the Catholic Women's League.

Father Marquette, Louis Joliet, Jean Nicolet and other famous explorers of the northwest will be represented. It will be broadly accurate from a historical standpoint and the lines of the various characters will be the most part come from historical sources. Father Marquette's discovery of the Mississippi river will be the chief scene of the pageant. A series of dances, ending with a maypole dance, will typify the modern Wisconsin as the second part of the pageant.

More than 300 children will take part in the event, with a number of well known local singers as principals in the cast. The choirs of the eight parishes in the city will compose a chorus of seventy-five voices for the affair, and Andre's orchestra, with Professor Charles Weis at the piano, will supply music.

Heir Apparent Arrives at Trent to Direct Campaign Against Italian Verdun

AUSTRIAN OFFENSIVE CONTINUES

Italians Optimistic Though Aggressors Have Crossed the Frontier in One Place

BY JOHN H. HEARLEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

ROME, May 20.—Emulating the example of the German heir apparent, the Austrian crown prince has arrived at Trent and is directing the campaign against Vicenza.

Though last night's official statement from the Italian war office admitted retirements there is every confidence here that the Austrian offensive is about to come to a halt.

Despite heavy sacrifices in men and ammunition, the Austrians thus far have crossed the Italian frontier at but one point—in the Astico valley. At no place do their lines approach nearer than twenty-two miles the important strategic position of Vicenza, reported to be the goal of the present offensive.

HUGHES POLLS BIG
VOTE IN OREGON

PORTLAND, Ore., May 20.—Charles E. Hughes, of New York, justice of the supreme court of the United States, was the overwhelming choice of the republicans of Oregon as presidential nominee on the face of early returns today from yesterday's state wide presidential preference primary. Early figures gave Hughes 8,693; Cummins 2,890; Burton 1,865. It was estimated that sixty per cent of the total registration of 250,000 had been cast at the primary.

Hughes is Calm
WASHINGTON, May 20.—Justice Hughes today received without apparent excitement news of his overwhelming triumph in the presidential preference primaries in Oregon.

Republican leaders who believe they have control of the coming republican convention, took this view of the situation: "Hughes against the field." One prominent senator declared the only figure in "the field" who could be regarded as more than a favorite son, since the beating given Cummins and Burton in Oregon, is Colonel Roosevelt.

MORGAN ALLEGES WIRE TAPPING ON WAR ORDER TRADE

NEW YORK, May 20.—Munitions orders, the house of Morgan, gumshoe detectives, "tapped" telephone wires, dictaphones and all the side lights of mystery and millions were inextricably involved today in a trail uncovered by the Thompson investigating committee that rivals Anna Katherine Green's best mystery story.

The Thompson committee started to probe reports that "some one" had been listening in on telephone conversations. The police department was named by the telephone company and a list of 350 "tapped" lines was confidentially submitted. Then came the further explanation from Police Commissioner Woods that J. P. Morgan and Company, had complained that some one of its employees was engaged in selling to some one having a desk in the office of Seymour and Seymour, confidential copies of cables and war orders of munitions. The police promptly "tapped" wires into Seymour's office hoping to spy out the thief. District Attorney Swann testified spies would ferret out how much Morgan had been bid on munition orders, tip off this information to competitors and then demand a share in the profits if the rival to Morgan succeeded by underbidding, in obtaining the contract. Swann says Burns detectives had found in a desk in Seymour's office, copies of a contract for a billion cartridges, obtained by Morgan through the French minister of finance.

BAD LIGHTING IS BIG STATE WASTE SAYS COMMISSION

MADISON, Wis., May 20.—(Special.)—Adequate lighting in Wisconsin factories would mean a saving of $300,000 annually in accident costs. This is the information contained in a letter sent to all the factories in Wisconsin by the Wisconsin Industrial commission. The commission says that it intends to send a letter regularly to the manufacturers of the state showing them how to cut down their costs.

A leading American manufacturer has recently issued the following statement: "Census experts state that 1 per cent of the gross output of the factories of the United States in 1909 was spoiled, approximating in value $150,000,000. It is estimated that 75 per cent of this spoilage occurred under artificial light conditions. Experts agree that 25 per cent of this spoilage could have been avoided if adequate light had been provided, resulting in a saving of $28,125,000. Using the above figures as a basis, $500,000 is lost by manufacturers each year in Wisconsin for spoilage caused by improper light."

SEVEN OF VILLA'S COLUMBUS RAID FOLLOWERS HANGED

DEMING, N. M., May 20.—The seven Villa followers captured after they had taken part in the Columbus raid, and who were sentenced to death by Judge Edward L. Medler here April 23, were hanged at Santa Fe penitentiary yesterday.

At the time they were sentenced, the prisoners pleaded that they were ignorant of where they were going at the time of the raid and that they were forced to follow Villa under penalty of death.

Six of the bandits listened unmoved to the sentence of death, but the seventh, Jose Rangel, who had been wounded in the raid and was carried into court on a cot, cried for mercy.

The Searchlight

FREE RIDES ON A MOVABLE FLOOR

The patrons of a certain New York city are treated to a free ride while they take their meals. The tables are arranged in a large circle which revolves slowly about some musical or dancing "act" in the center. Those who begin their dinner at the entrance of the cafe may find themselves eating their salad course in the rear. The circle is 32 feet in diameter and is moved by a one-fourth horsepower motor at the rate of one revolution per hour. The motion is too slow to be objectionably noticeable to any one, but considerable amusement is afforded by the gradual change of location.

GETS PRACTICAL KNOWLEDGE

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 20.—To effect his preparedness doctrines and get first hand information about life in the United States navy, Rev. Fred A. Whitfield, 26, Oakes, N. D., recruited at the naval station here yesterday and left for the training station at Chicago.

THE HIGH SCHOOL'S GREAT PAGEANT

During the pageant yesterday most Shakespearean scholars devoted themselves to observation of the spectacle with relation to the degree of accuracy with which it portrayed the Elizabethan period and the spirit and customs of its people. It was most interesting from that angle, and especially did those who could with authority say that Hamlet was or was not Hamlet enjoy their study of the characters in the passing show.

Without this nicety of reproduction the pageant would have brought little joy to those whose consciousness of error and anachronism would have made inaccuracies painful, but it was good to feel that the pageant conveyed its greater message to all who witnessed, even to many little enriched in Shakespearean lore. For fully thirty minutes we saw that stream of youth and hope flow by in the majesty of its conscious power, and the sight answered every doubt and fear as to the future of America. It answered the "business administration"; it answered "The Taxpayers' League". It shot home the thing that Charles Tenney Jackson saw when, watching the students climbing the slope to the University of Wisconsin campus, he disposed of the future of democracy by pointing to "the march of the young men up the hill".

It seems paltry to congratulate the high school upon its achievement. How finer to trust its people to appreciate how we understand and how we feel it all in the nerve and fiber of us. To be deeply moved—that is to live keenly. The emotions which we can analyze and describe are not the richest of which we are capable. We'll talk of it the less that we may feel the more.

However, many people today carry with them a sense of interrupted rapture. One break came when seven street cars piled up in Main street to break the parade and impede the view. There also was the indifferent policing of the park. We should say that the impression of grave failure on the part of the board of trade and of the municipal organization, was general. A thing that should have been widely and deeply civic received no adequate official recognition.

"Why was not the hillside amphitheater at Myrick park used?" inquired one of the thousands who were unable to hear the lines or see the players in Riverside bandstand.

Do not expect high school officials to reply, for to tell the truth might be indiscreet, but the reason is obvious and sufficient. Nearly a dozen excellent teachers have gone, lured by better pay. A wonderful pageant in which marched 900 of our young people most elaborately costumed in the garb of three centuries ago, gave no momentary pause to "business". To it no male civic organization gave a public thought or a farthing. So we marched them down through the heart of the town in the hope that they might find a place in the town's heart.

In conclusion it may be said that no matter how woefully organized La Crosse failed to sense and recognize the significance of the high school's pageant in the Shakespeare tercentenary, as individuals we responded with generous warmth, for on but a single former occasion has Riverside park entertained so vast a concourse of people as it did upon the memorable afternoon of Friday, May 19, 1916.

FOR HOME CONSUMPTION

As a protest against the conventionality demanded of men in the heated period in which what women don't wear may be termed the negligible negligee, the Associated Ad clubs, convening in Philadelphia in June, propose to keep cool, if shocking. It will be a "white convention" in which Palm Beach and duck, with more or less daring décolleté designs, will prevail.

And why not? "The Follies of 19—" contains many a laugh at the expense of the women—what they wear and what they do not wear—but never a smile at the men. It's a habit which the first joksmith acquired from contemplation of Mother Eve's wardrobe, which, as a close observer, he was able to detect. But there's no fun poked at the slavery of men to coats and collars in the brick-kiln heat of our August city. The subject's far too sad for levity, and the menfolk wrote the farce.

And so we are for this emancipation proclamation. On the first sultry day papa is going to walk heroically through the front door wearing no coat and one of those low-cut, blonsey effects in shirts, displaying "a nicely turned shoulder" and a "movie" chest, and if mama comes down garbed mostly in atmospheric pressure and exudes facetious remarks such as all the dear things indulged in last year—if mama dares do anything like that, papa'll spank.

Quips and Cranks and Wanton Wiles

Before and After

The members of the club were telling yarns when a quiet man in the corner was asked to contribute. "Well," said he, "I once entered a restaurant where they weigh you before eating and then after eating, and then charge you by weight. I got a good feed and was charged five shillings. The next time I went I took in my pocket bricks, weights, old iron and such like. I was weighed and then went upstairs and had a banquet three times as big as the last. After getting rid of the ballast I went down and was weighed again, but they couldn't make it out."

He paused. "Couldn't make what out?" asked the club members. "Why," answered the quiet man, "they owed me four-and-tupence." London Tit-Bits.

A Scheme
"Why did you tell your husband to buy a yard of that goods?" The saleslady assured you yesterday that the sample could not be matched. "I know. He'll be afraid to come home without matching it, so he'll order me a fine new dress."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Husband—I certainly do.

Big Brother's Definition

ASQUITH RETURNS
LONDON, May 20.—Premier Asquith returned from his trip to Ireland Friday afternoon, but gave out no statement regarding the form of government he plans to set up in Dublin.

THE TRIBUNE'S DAILY TRAVELETTE

(By Nilsen)

THE SPONGE FISHERS
In the blue waters of the Mediterranean, off the northern coast of Africa, is piled one of the few remaining trades of oldtime sea romance and danger. Here for six months in the year the sponge-fishing fleets of the Greek islands make their annual catch, letting down their stalwart divers into the green gloom below to grope among the coral and the sharks for the sponges that the world uses in its bath-tub.

The sponge-diver leads a hard and unenviable existence. Men speak of the fascination of those plunges into still depths—a fascination that lies deeper than the chances of quick profits—and there must indeed be some such element to induce any man to ship as a sponge diver while there is a chance for a living to be earned on terra firma.

The diver braves the perils of savage fish, of strange diseases which beset his calling, of a hundred chances that may sever the thin airline that means life to him, and his reward in days and weeks spent in narrow, dirty quarters, hard words when his catch is poor and no thanks when it is good. Out of the 700 divers that leave shore every year for the grounds, sixty to a hundred never return.

A few sponges are taken with long grappling-hooks and dredge a few more by naked divers who sink to the bottom by means of a weight, staying under water two or three minutes, but the bulk of the catch is brought up by the men who don an air-helmet and weighted shoes, to plod about the sea-bottom fifty or sixty yards below the surface for almost an hour at a time.

Sharks and dog-fish roam the lower levels of the sponge-grounds, and these are the chief peril of the men who dive unhelmeted. The other class—the men who dive in harness—fear far more the dreaded diver's paralysis that attacks a man who is raised too suddenly from low levels and high pressure. The paralysis is caused by bubbles of air forming in the veins, and strange to say, a man thus attacked often finds his only relief when he is again under the waters.

Properly managed, with a due regard for the diver, for raising and lowering him slowly and allowing him long periods of rest, the fishing is not dangerous. It is the fierce hurry, caused by the consciousness that the profits of the whole crew and the welfare of all dependent on them, hangs on the work of a few men, that causes the diver to be sent below again and again, until he is exhausted and succumbs easily. But in return for his hardships he has long hours amid the wonders of the sea-bottom—a fairy land peopled by the creatures of dreams.

"There's something rather funny about all this work. Yesterday, from the dredge I looked off to the Isle Bonne forest and in an old dead tree, away off. I know I saw a man watching us. And Mangy, the cook, saw him too. He muttered and rolled his eyes, but I noticed he said nothing to Williams or Big Jim. He just nodded to me and muttered: 'Dem old pirate folkses. And Mangy's so absent-minded that he's an atrocious cook. How did you get on here for dinner?'"

"Duck," I responded, absently smelling of my collar: "With gravy—rather hot."

"And the princess—was she here?" "She served the duck and then put off."

"Gee!" he retorted: "There's some girl! She got me, Doctor Dick—big! I'm tired of Mary's crowd—they're super-civilized. Bright and clever, but they can't love any more. Too cool, and looking for the main chance. I'm tired of cleverness. It isn't the fashion to lead simple contented lives any more. If a man said he was really contented and happy, people'd say he was a quitter. The women of Mary's crowd look on their husbands as sort of good old work-dogs that they're fond of, after a fashion—as they would be of any useful animal that didn't take up too much of their time. They give him sort of a companionship—that's the essence of their modernity. And I'm glad I see it now—that I turned back. I want something primal where women have passion and the flash of savagery, and give all recklessly and demand all."

"The duck season," I put in irrelevantly, "is closed by law now. I wish there was a closed season on women—women with a flash of savagery. Hear the baron snore—it's big and primal."

"There you go, Doctor Dick, fanning away about real things as if they didn't matter. If Williams was blotted out, I'd enjoy all this." And he clenched those bruised hands of his—and winced.

I faced about on him squarely. "See here, don't go to talking all this fantastic idealism to the baron. He'll have you for Number two!"

"What on earth are you talking about?" "Never mind. As for women, much as I love Mary, I can not quite reconcile myself to them. The notion that they have anything to do with happiness is absurd. Happiness is solely a thing of one's soul. Women are never fair to their enemies nor absolutely generous to their friends—they play with an ace up their sleeve. They marry for a variety of reasons of which love is the fifth or sixth."

He denounced me with the inevitable intolerance of the optimist. He had not yet had his duck. I saw between Clell, in his new if confused ardor, and the baron with his musty chivalry, a bachelor would have a hard time to keep his pipe sweet. And that Creole girl would come back—I hoped it would not be a turn-out of soup the next time.

We smoked and idled lazily. The sun swung about the shadows of the baron's pool. The beauty of that morning I can not tell you. The arching and tenebrous silence, the warm sweet twilight, a tawny velvet which the sun could not quite dispel.

The noon was near and its somnolence was on us, when I heard a grating under the platform. Then above it arose Laure's head. Her small and exquisite ear was so close I might have touched it, and her dark eyes widened. She evidently was startled to see me, thinking I must have departed in a huff. As she climbed up she nodded tartly. Then at sight of Clell, her sparkle came. She held both hands to him.

"Ah, m'sieu! So, already, you come to see me. It is good—you have not forgotten." "I couldn't forget the honey bees—and you. I was intending to try to get through this swamp this afternoon to call at Papa Prosper's."

She felt real arm. "Don't you ever try that. A Yankee fel-lo! The deep swamp, m'sieu!—she looked about—"this is nothing to it! This little cheniene on this side Isle Bonne they call John-the-Fool."

"Excellently named," I murmured, and she disregarded me. "Don't you ever go no farther than John-the-Fool. You can always see me here. Always I come to see if Allesandro feed the baron as he should. And talk. At Papa Prosper's—ah, well! The talk is mostly crabs and seed catalogue. Here we talk about dukes."

"Dukes and ducks," I murmured again, and she shrugged. I refused to be ignored, even if these two young persons already had no use for anything but each other.

Then I heard the baron bawling from his bed. Within one saw the bar over his blankets convulsing. Then the hank of his pipe came out. From under the bunk crawled the spike-tailed pup. The upheaval of the clothing continued; the baron's foot stuck out. "Mademoiselle, is that you? Ah, I heard that voice! I see the sun—mademoiselle, will you put the garden out in its sunshine?"

"Oh, but!" She broke away from Clell. And then about the corner of the camp she reappeared trundling a wheelbarrow. On it was a sort of

60 DAISY DEAN

Miss Dorothy Kelly, who is completing the last ten reels or so of "The Secret Kingdom," the new Vitagraph serial by Louis Joseph Vance, plays the part of a deep-dyed villainess, who, though a fashion plate to the eye, is horribly wicked of soul.

The diminutive actress—well nicknamed "Dot" in the studios—is one of those ebullient temperaments much impressed by surroundings and influences, as are all temperamental sanguine natures. As the result of playing villainess for so many weeks, and with the prospect of playing her for a few weeks more, she laughingly tells her friends that she has become inclined to true villainy in real life.

Miss Kelly was born in Philadelphia just twenty-two years ago. She is of Irish-English ancestry.

Napoleon and Sally
Foil Kidnapers

In a picture which is to be released soon, Napoleon and Sally, the near-human chimpanzees, clope from a museum, and, to escape the trainers, become second-story workers, entering the home of a wealthy man. They frighten the children, who hide under the bed. The chimps take their place in the bed. There they are when crooks come who have planned to kidnap the millionaire's children. The chimps are taken to the rendezvous of the kidnapers, where they almost instantaneously prove that a ransom from the millionaire will be impossible to secure.

Signal Film Co.
To Invade Orient

A signal company composed of Helen Holmes as star, and a supporting cast, is now on its way to the Hawaiian islands. There a five-reel feature, entitled "Diamond Runners," will be made. The story calls for many boat scenes and a decided tropical atmosphere, possible to secure only in Hawaii.

An attempt is now being made to secure suitable stories for Philippine and Japanese atmosphere, and if this is successful the company will in all probability extend the trip that far.

box. The teetering load was almost too much, and Clell hastened. "Merci!" she said, with exasperating prettiness, and left it to him. But from the baron's bar came a volley of objection.

"Le nom de Dieu! Marquise, the Yankee will spill it! Ah, our garden! To the rescue, mademoiselle! From his clumsy hands—rescue!" Out he rolled in his red robe-de-nuit. His shock of white hair stood every way, his porpoise body jellied as he strode.

Clell was parading the wheelbarrow lucklessly here and there. "Here, messieu! In the sunshine—here!" She pointed to the only bar of the sunlight that fell through John-the-Fool's high-arching canopy. Clell chased it wildly and engineered the garden there.

The baron was following. "Ah, young man, careful!" He stopped, wheezing over the barrow. In the slant box, perhaps three feet by three, filled with rich mold was a valiant array of lettuce, onions, radishes and a lone cucumber vine. Bravely they looked up to the sunshine. Proudly down gazed the baron. He patted the lustiest radish of the three.

"Pardon, messieu, but I could not trust you—you can not realize that this is the only sweet earth on this side the swamp. At what labor we brought it through from Isle Bonne! And the sun?—le diable! Such a morsel as we get here. All the time one must chase it—after two o'clock there is none whatever!"

"It will have most two hours more, Messieu le Baron. Ah, the cucumber—one can hear it cry with joy!" Laure fondled it lovingly. Clell watched that small hand. What affection to place on a cucumber!

The baron went back to his dressing. He put on his green cap of the feather and lighted his pipe before he drew the curtains. Then I heard his phonograph rustily clawing out a duo of Rigoletto, and his rattly old voice following, as he searched for his socks.

Heard As The Pageant Passed

When Sir Walter Raleigh's Narragansetts passed in stolid dignity, a bystander (how innocent one may only guess) looked up from the contemporaneous American and exclaimed: "I didn't know that Shakespeare wrote 'Hiawatha!'"

"He didn't, you idiot," remonstrated a companion, "Bacon wrote it."

"What in all the pageant most impresses you?"

The man turned from contemplation of the passing array of court ladies.

"That forty per cent of high school girls have gotter," he replied.

The woman winced. Then, "rather than 40 per cent of the high school boys are knock-kneed," she countered.

The pageant might have been a clinic. "Ninety-nine per cent of these enlargements are outgrown at twenty-five years, if only the poor girl escapes the knife," pursued the man.

"The crime of modern surgery is afoot and reputable surgeons can't elude the barbed-ethical entanglements and stop the thing. I'd a—m—sight rather see 'em operate on the knock-knees."

NORMAL CHORUS PLEASES WITH HIAWATHA FEAST

Student Singers and Orchestra Win Approval by Keen Interpretation of Noted Work

BY MRS. JAMES KERR
Weeks of faithful practice and earnest endeavor by the Normal Choral society culminated Thursday evening in the giving of "Hiawatha's Wedding Feast," at the normal auditorium, under the direction of Homer E. Cotton. The Choral club was accompanied by the Normal orchestra of twenty pieces.

The soloist of the evening was Mr. Grant Kimball of Chicago, who gave the first part of the program alone. Mr. Kimball has a beautiful tenor voice, combined with a pleasing personality, and sings with ease and artistic finish. The dramatic quality also is not lacking as was evidenced by his varied interpretations. Two groups of songs were given:

"Where'er You Walk," Handel; "Der Sandtrager," Bungen; "An den Mondenschein," Bohn and uPecino's "Elucavan le stelle," formed the first group. For an enthusiastic encore, Mr. Kimball gave a little Irish song, "Supposin'." In the second group were "Lolita" by Buzzi Peccia; "Mary," a Scotch ballad, by Richardson; "An Explanation," Coleridge-Taylor; "Duna," McGill and "Where Blossoms Grow," by Sans Souci. All these were delightful, but perhaps "Duna" stands out as the gem.

Mr. Kimball's singing of "Awake Beloved," in the cantata, was done with dramatic fire and vigor and in a way that showed the range of his voice and emotions.

The second part of the program consisted of the cantata, "Hiawatha's Wedding Feast," the poem by Longfellow, the music by Coleridge-Taylor. England's famous colored composer. Two hundred and fifty young people sang the score with vigor and enthusiasm and a careful understanding of its requirements. The dramatic climaxes were especially good.

The orchestra played with a precision and tone quality that was surprising. This Normal orchestra is certainly a credit to La Crosse, being recruited absolutely from the ranks of the students and no "guest" players being added for the performance.

Mr. Cotton directed excellently, responding carefully to the rhythmic changes which made this score a difficult one.

Malcolm Maine proved himself an able accompanist both for Mr. Kimball and the club, playing with noticeable tact and sympathy.

The audience was not as large as it should have been.

A whole lot of music lovers in La Crosse missed a fine concert Thursday night.

When one considers the tremendous amount of actual hard work both individually and collectively that is required to put on a work like this, in addition to bringing an out-of-town soloist for the occasion, it is regrettable that the audience does not equal in numbers its enthusiasm.

VEGETABLES SHINE AS IDEAL TONIC FOR SPRING TIME

You should be very careful, however, that the waters from which it is taken are not polluted, for the cross acts as a sieve to catch everything floating down the stream.

A vegetable of little food value and hard to digest is the radish, which consists chiefly of wood, water and sulphur. A young radish, quickly grown, is fairly digestible and makes a good appetizer, but when the radish gets old it is no more than cordwood, and should be avoided. Also it should not be peeled, but eaten skin and all, and preferably with a bit of the leaf too.

Good Old Spinach

Spinach is an excellent vegetable to eat in the spring because of the large amount of iron which it contains. It is mildly laxative and emollient, and is especially good for invalids and old persons. Also, the juice of spinach as obtained by boiling it may be drunk with excellent effect upon the complexion.

Another wholesome vegetable is the turnip, and one which may be used in more ways than most persons are aware. The root, boiled and mashed, is an excellent vegetable. Turnip-tops when young, make excellent spring greens. When grown in dry, sandy soil, the turnip may be mashed and made into a bread, and it may also be baked whole, and served with butter.

The somewhat similar carrot is distinguished by its pronounced antiseptic powers, which make it especially digestible; while in some rural districts in England, mashed carrots are used as a sauce for sores, and are said to heal them quickly.

What effect the tomato has upon the human system is a matter of some controversy, and should certainly be of importance in this country, where nearly everyone eats the fruit raw in season and canned during the winter. The charge has been seriously brought against the tomato that it causes cancer, but no substantial proof has been brought forward, and there is nothing in the composition of the vegetable to indicate that it could do so. It contains citric and malic acids and also oxalate of potash and has no charms for the gouty. On the other hand, it undoubtedly stimulates the liver, and the prevalence of torpid liver among civilized brain workers probably accounts for its rapid rise in popularity when it was brought from South America and introduced in Europe and the United States.

Fine Tree Smudge

The whole tomato plant is rich in sulphur, so that when burned under fruit trees, the smoke will kill blight upon them. It is probable that the release of sulphur within the body when the tomato is digested has a decided anti-bacterial action. Altogether, there is little doubt but what the tomato is a vegetable of remarkable purifying value when taken raw. Most of its specific qualities are neutralized when it is cooked.

These instances are sufficient to show that nearly all vegetables contain specific acids and oils, and should therefore be eaten with a view to their effect. The judicious use of fresh vegetables will do a great deal to help you through minor ailments and indispositions which beset all mankind in the spring; while by the careless use of them chronic ailments or tendencies are apt to be aggravated.

ITALIAN ROYALTY IN NARROW ESCAPE FROM AUSTRIAN AIR BOMBS

BY JOHN H. HEARLEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
ROME, May 20.—Queen Helena and the Princesses Jolanda and Mafalda narrowly escaped death when Austrian aviators attacked two trains on which they were passengers near Venice Monday. It was learned Friday following their return to Rome.

Bombs burst all about the royal train in which the Italian queen and the 15-year-old Jolanda were riding and the coaches were showered with spent shrapnel from anti-aircraft guns. One bomb exploded near the express train on which the 14-year-old Princess Mafalda was a passenger.

Queen Helena, with Princess Jolanda, was returning to Rome from the front, having spent several days with King Victor Emmanuel at army headquarters. Princess Mafalda had gone to Venice where she boarded an express train for Padua, planning to meet her mother and sister there.

Passengers became panic stricken and were only calmed by the queen's magnificent example of pluck. The aviators were finally driven off by anti-aircraft artillery.

The section killed provides that the shipping board, with the approval of the president, may have constructed and equipped or purchase, lease or charter vessels to meet commercial requirements of the marine trade and for use as naval auxiliaries or army transports.

FRENCH QUARTERLY BUDGET EXCEEDS $1,500,000,000

PARIS, May 20.—The French budget for the third quarter of 1916 exceeds $1,500,000,000. Minister of Finance Ribot announced when the chamber of deputies reopened Thursday. He asked immediate increase in duties on many commodities to meet heavy war expenses.

The deputies must find new taxes that will produce an added revenue of $180,000,000. Ribot said. He urged an immediate increase in the duties on alcohol, wine, sugar and tobacco. He urged practically a restriction on the production and consumption of alcohol which he declared was paralyzing the national forces of production.

PIMPLES ON FACE ITCHING INTENSE

Began Getting Bigger. Large, Hard and Very Red. Scattered Over Face. Had to Scratch.

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"I noticed that my face was covered with pimples which began getting bigger. They were large and hard and were very red and there were so many festering at a time that I had to squeeze them out and they formed like a boil under the skin. They scattered all over my face and the itching was so intense that I had to scratch my face so much it bled."

"The trouble lasted about a month and I used — tablets, but they did not do any good. I noticed a Cuticura Soap and Ointment advertisement so I thought I would try them. The next day I saw the pimples were going away and I used two cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment and I was healed." FIFTEEN THOUSAND WATCH SPECTACLE OF GREAT PAGEANT

Miss Alice Worth, was an entirely satisfactory reproduction. A blackened throne-chair of ancient carved design was her seat upon the platform, in the midst of her pages and immediate attendants. Upon her right was seated a slender, black-clad person in whom the multitude saw the reincarnation of Will Shakespeare, and intimate friends the features of Le Roy Yerly.

The revels which entertained the auburn-haired queen began with a Shakespearean song, "Blow, Blow Thou Winter Wind," from "As You Like It." That part of the mummery which composes the high school orchestra crowded the dais and followed the high school orchestra in the swinging measures of the song. It was the first glimpse the crowd had had of the massed effect of the brilliant costumes, and the singers were well applauded by the spectators as well as Queen Bess's court.

A program of pantomimes, dances and songs followed, of which the second number was the wrestling match from "As You Like It." Two foot ball men, Walter Reget as Orlando and Floyd Kuleynski as Charles, the wrestler, were the leading performers in the wordless play. There was a spirited tussle, at the conclusion of which men-at-arms carried off the defeated Charles, and Orlando knelt to receive his lady-love's token.

Peasants and Fairies

Succeeding the wrestling scene came a group of a dozen morris dancers—girls in old English peasant costume, who went through a clinking, jangling measure with laughing gusto. Followed the "Fairy Song" from "Midsummer Night's Dream," by the chorus, and then a troupe of twenty fairies, in the fluffiest and daintiest of delicate-colored costumes danced for the queen.

The rollicking Twelfth Night group came next in order, preceded by the chorus singing, "When That I Was a Little Tiny Boy," from the first scene of the fifth act. Frank Spittel, Arthur Denny and William Roellig were the three clowns who represented the Twelfth Night masquers. They tumbled through an eccentric dance like animated jumping-jacks, winding up with lively hand springs.

The familiar casket scene from "The Merchant of Venice" was the next pantomime, in which the princes of Monaco and Arragon made their bad guesses and left with appropriate chagrin, while the lucky Bassanio picked the leaden casket and led off his train with the smiling Portia on his arm.

There was an interlude of song—"Oh, Mistress Mine, Where Are You Roaming?" from "Twelfth Night," and then appeared a centurion of Caesar's guard with a squad of spearmen, who went through a javelin drill in the best manner of the empire.

Two Pretty Dances

One of the prettiest numbers of the entire program followed—a stately Italian court dance by a group of most gorgeously attired lords and ladies. The chorus appeared again with "Who is Sylvia?" from "Two Gentlemen of Verona," and a charming May-pole dance followed.

The deep-lunged chorus of "Brown October Ale," sung by divers lords and gentlemen, men-at-arms and Roman senators, wound up the program.

Astonishes Traffic Cop

Not the least interesting feature of the day was the appearance of the business district when the pageant actors left the park. Roman matrons and tiring-women of Lady Macbeth rushed the soda-water fountains on the arms of silken courtiers or ragged Athenian workmen, and the streets were gay for an hour with helmeted Amazons and fairies. Slim legs twinkled in brilliant hose or jack-boots up and down Main street, and every third automobile that passed the astonished traffic cop was driven by some colorful masquer and bore a deck-load of passengers whose costumes dated anywhere from 200 to 2,000 years back into the misty past.

ROBERT'S RAIN CHECK

BY CATHERINE CRANMER

(Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Too bad you don't take an interest in base ball, Eleanor," said Robert one morning at breakfast, a year after their marriage. "Since the big leagues got down to machine work this year, they are doing some stunts, believe me!" And he fell into the slang that seems always to go with base ball talk.

"Just imagine any ladylike woman being interested in base ball!" said his wife decidedly. "I've always felt sure that Anne Tompkins just pretends to like it because Jack Farley is such a—what do you call it—fan?"

"Not on your life! Base ball is about as free from followers who merely pretend to like it as anything under the sun. As for Anne—why, she's an all-around fan; knows the batting averages of all the best players, I'll venture."

"Well," said she, ready with another objection, "I can't see why everybody drops into unintelligible lingo whenever he begins to talk base ball. For my part, I can't even see any sense in the term 'fan.'"

"Well, fan is simply short for fancier, or for fanatic," laughed Robert. "but it combines all the meaning of both words and then some—see?" Before Eleanor had time to reply, Robert was fumbling in one of his pockets. Finally he smiled in a relieved way as he drew out a small piece of blue cardboard which even to Eleanor was recognizable as the portion of a ticket retained by a seat holder. "I had an anxious moment then, for I didn't remember where I put my rain check."

"What is a rain check? Let me see it," said Eleanor, holding out her hand. Robert passed it to her and she turned it over and over and noted its printed guarantee of being good for any one of which it was issued completed when rain interrupted.

"So you got rained out yesterday, did you?"

"No; the day before, and I've just got a hunch that there'll be some great hurling and hitting this afternoon. I'm sorry you don't take any interest in the game." As an afterthought, apparently, he added, "A lot of women do."

After Robert had gone whistling out of the front door, Eleanor stood by the dining room window and gazed out at the gay nasturtiums blooming in her window boxes, but she was not even conscious of their brilliant colors. She was thinking that Robert left her with the air of one who goes out to find what he likes rather than one who leaves behind that which he likes most, and she didn't relish the possibility.

When the maid had removed all of the breakfast and had replaced a fern dish and centerpiece on the table, she ventured to ask Eleanor about luncheon and dinner. Eleanor gave minute instructions for dinner, but stated that she would be out for luncheon. Then she picked up the morning paper and went into the living room. With a determined air she turned through the paper until she found the sporting page. It looked to her just as it had always looked—an unintelligible mass of type, topped with a row of poor pictures of human beings in disguise.

After plodding through many paragraphs of which she understood nothing, she finally found a comparatively lucid paragraph giving the place, the starting time and the personnel of the players for that afternoon's game. She remembered that Robert's rain check had borne this inscription—"Box No. 90, $1.00."

That afternoon, about the time the game began, Eleanor, timid but trim in a blue serge and sailor hat, requested the ticket seller to assign her to a seat slightly to the rear of Box 90. The ticket was pushed out to her and the ticket seller was looking over her head at the purchaser next in line before she had time to ask for any of the information she needed to help her find the seat. However, she finally reached her place just as a series of powerful howls and shouts went up from the masses of humanity which completely covered the many tiers of grandstands and bleachers.

JOINT ARMY BILL PASSES THE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The Hay-Chamberlain army bill was passed by the house today by a vote of 349 to 25. It will go to the president immediately for his signature. Leader Mann and other republicans who demanded an army of 250,000 men voted against the measure.

All fear of being conspicuous in that crowd left Eleanor, for she soon saw that the glowering giants out on the field were the only individuals who were being noticed. She discovered Robert and three other men seated directly below her a few rows distant. Something decisive must have happened on the diamond just then, for thousands of enthusiastic young men and hundreds of dignified older ones rose to their feet and yelled like Comanches, waving their arms wildly. Robert was standing and cheering and talking excitedly to his companions.

Eleanor felt a limp helpless sensation. Then she noticed the big black bulletin board directly opposite her on the far side of the field, and she began to watch the changing numbers with some interest. She also began to recall something she had read that morning in a book of rules purchased at a news stand, and she determined to see whether she herself could work up any enthusiasm which Anne Tompkins assumed. Presently a big fellow, at the bat knocked a ball that shot like a great white bullet up into the air and then seemed to take its own time to fall into the eager hands of the outfielders at the farthest side of the grounds, and while it soared the big fellow ran as if life were the stake, and the crowds yelled frantically until he stopped on third base.

Eleanor clenched her hands and sat tense, as she felt a thrilling shiver in her spine and realized for the first time that the yelling fans about her were not maniacs.

One morning at breakfast, a month later, Eleanor was daintily pretty in a lavender negligee, and Robert looked admiringly at her.

"Will you be my beau today, sir?" she asked with a smile.

"For luncheon? With pleasure, madam!" He made an exaggerated bow.

"Not for luncheon only," she replied, "but for the whole afternoon!"

"What is it? A country club blow-out? Could we make it some other day? There's a peach of a double-header to come off this afternoon."

"I know it, and that's where I want you to take me."

"But, Eleanor, dear, you'd be bored, I'm afraid, sitting there for two or three hours when you know nothing of the game."

"But I do know something of the game, for I've been going to the games and posting myself on points for a whole month." Robert was puzzled and surprised at her reply, and she rose and went behind his chair and put her arms around his neck.

"When I saw that things outside my rather frivolous interests were the things that roused your greatest enthusiasm, I thought I'd better investigate. So I began with base ball. It was your rain check that set me to thinking one morning," she explained.

"Why, how was that?"

"It had become evident that before our game of life together was even well begun we were getting away

ARMY OF CLUBWOMEN MOVING ON GOTHAM FOR BIENNIAL MEET

Twenty Thousand Delegates from All Over Country
Expected at Big Convention in New York

NEW YORK, May 20.—The vanguard of an army of 20,000 women, mobilized from the ranks of 2,000,000 clubwomen in every state and possession of the United States, have begun the invasion of Manhattan island today for the opening of the thirteenth biennial convention of the Federated Women's clubs of America in the Seventh Regiment armory here next week.

As the squads, companies, regiments and battalions of handsomely gowned femininity troop along the platforms from the long trains pulling into Grand Central, Pennsylvania station and Hudson Terminal from California, Florida, Maine and other parts of the country, they are taken in hand by Boy Scouts in khaki, who see them safely delivered to their appointed places. Other scouts go around afterward and give them printed and oral instructions about getting here and there in New York. Still other scouts look after their luggage.

Thanks to these aids and the hard working arrangements committee under the direction of Mrs. North McLean of the New York Federation, the 20,000 will be comfortably settled in New York town and on their way to hear Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker of Texas bang the big gavel on the steel sounding board that will call the convention to order.

From that moment on until the night of June 2 the women leaders of the nation will make this old town hum with speeches and squabbles and social affairs and all those other exciting events that women bring about when they get together. They will give the world their official opinion on government and goulash, food and fighting, marriage and millionaires, babies and banting, health and hairdressing, short skirts and short ballots, big wives and little husbands, prizefights and tea-fights and many, many other matters of general interest.

There has been evidence of some rather sharp feeling between the city and country delegates, over the matter of style, which may crop up in some form during the convention. The only open display of feeling on the point thus far comes from the Indiana delegation, whose members have expressed themselves as being quietly determined to ignore advice and instructions from New York, distributed gratis through the Federation's magazines telling how to dress while here.

One hundred wealthy Indiana women are enroute here on a special train to attend the convention. They are piqued by what they term the "absurd effrontery" of New York women in seeking to dictate "good taste" in dress and they are coming equipped with means whereby to uphold their reputation as one of the best dressed groups of women attending the biennials.

To Indiana falls the honor of supplying Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker, federation president, with her aide, Mrs. Elizabeth Claypool Earl of Connersville, will be seated at Mrs. Pennybacker's right during the convention, assisting the president in her arduous duties incident to presiding over America's most interesting gathering of women.

Poet's Daughter Weds Banker

NEW YORK, May 20.—The marriage of Miss Dorothea de Kay Gilder, daughter of the late Richard Watson Gilder, poet and editor of the Century magazine, to Dallas D. L. McGrew, New York banker, took place yesterday at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Richard Watson Gilder. Owing to illness in the family the wedding was attended by the members of the immediate families only. A few years ago Miss Gilder made an excursion into the world of the stage. Her first part was that of a flower girl in "Kismet", with Otis Skinner. Later she was in "Egypt", a play by Edward Sheldon, in which Miss Margaret Anglin was the star. She was also for a short time with E. H. Sothern and Miss Julia Marlowe.

25,000 CLUBWOMEN TO ATTEND BIENNIAL

Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker, president General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Ten thousand delegates and 15,000 other club women will attend the biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, which will be held in New York city the last of this month. Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker of Austin, Texas, is at the head of this great organization.

Pioneer Woman Minister Reaches Age Of 91 Years

Rev. Antoinette L. B. Blackwell, pioneer suffragist, the first woman in America to receive the degree of Doctor of Divinity, and the first ordained in America, is 91 years old today. She is the sole survivor of the group of pioneer suffragists who held the first National Woman's Rights convention at Worcester, Mass., in 1849. She is the mother of seven children and the grandmother of ten. She has written a dozen philosophical books, the last one in her ninetieth year. Frequently she occupies the pulpit at All Souls' Unitarian church in Elizabeth, N. J., of which she is pastor emerita. She has been prominent as a lecturer on the abolition of slavery, temperance and social reforms. She was born at Henrietta, N. Y., in 1825, was educated at Oberlin college, and was graduated from Oberlin Theological seminary in 1850. She began preaching in 1848 and was ordained in the Congregational ministry in 1853. Later she became a Unitarian. Some thirteen years ago she went to the Holy Land alone and brought back a bottle of water from the river Jordan with which to baptize her grandsons.

Today Her Wedding Day, But She Is Already Married

NEW YORK, May 20.—This is the wedding day of Miss Emily Ayune McCready, daughter of the late Thomas L. McCready, granddaughter of the late Dr. Benjamin W. McCready, and sister of Thomas L. McCready, founder of Vanity Fair—but Miss McCready will not marry Langdon Gillet, director of the Thimble theater on Fifth avenue, today as planned.

The explanation is that five weeks ago, after the wedding day had been announced, Miss McCready was taken to the hospital for an operation. The outcome being doubtful, Mr. Gillet went with Dr. Percy S. Grant, the divine who was to have officiated today, and the wedding was solemnized beside the hospital cot on which Miss McCready lay, just before the operation was performed.

Miss McCready—which is to say, Mrs. Gillet, is completely recovered today and is enjoying her wedding day immensely, albeit there will be no wedding.

Apparent Contradiction

"She twists her husband around her little finger." "Why, I thought you said she had him under her thumb."

Did You Ever Hear The Like Of It

Grammercy—What, another new gown?
Mrs. Grammercy—Yes, dear, I must have one when I attend the lecture on domestic economy.—Judge.

Not Second Hand

"No, indeed, it isn't. It is all brand-new stock."—Baltimore American.

On Installments

Mrs. Flatbush—She got all her furniture on the installment plan.
Mrs. Bensonhurst—Are you sure?
Mrs. Flatbush—Positively. You see, she's been married five times and she got a little furniture with each husband.

Evidently They Were Together

"My husband tells me that he was out late last night with your husband."
"That isn't so. I want you to understand that my husband was out with your husband."

Out of Date

"Can you alter that gown to fit me, do you think?"
"Certainly not, mademoiselle. That isn't done any more. You must be altered to fit the gown."

Garment Makers to Choose Fast Colors

CHICAGO, May 20.—Steps toward adopting standard colors are to be taken by American garment manufacturers to offset the dye shortage caused by the war in Europe, at the annual meeting of the American Garment Manufacturers' association which will open here tomorrow. Representatives of 300 firms are here for the meeting.

The dye question will be the most important to come before the meeting, although the shortage of raw materials will be discussed.

Galbraith Miller, Jr., of Milwaukee, Wis., is president of the association. Red Cross reports from Canada say thousands of soldiers in Europe have been poisoned by the inferior dyes manufacturers have been compelled to use in clothing made for the troops.

Weds Chum of Rejected Suitor

EVANSTON, Ill., May 20.—Miss Margaret Freeman, a pretty Evanston girl, is the bride today of Paul Engstrom of Los Angeles. When she jilted Richard C. Gartz, it was said that her refusal sent him to Europe to enlist. Through Gartz, she met Engstrom, his chum.

LIKE JOSEPH'S COAT THE NEW AUTO WRAP COMES IN MANY HUES

Those of Duvelty Are the Richest But It Also Takes the Richest to Buy
Them

"I'm glad that Enrich liquid's green. That saves the cost of gasoline. 'Twill go so well, said Blanche Marie. With my new motor coat you see."

NEW YORK, May 20.—A lady enveloped in an emerald-hued motor coat of duvelty with an emerald satin jockey's cap and a floating length or two of emerald chiffon veil isn't as green as she looks. She is decidedly smart according to the latest thing in motor models.

The coats for motor wear are legion this season and the time is, fortunately, long since past when the lovely motor maid had to disguise herself like a gargoyle in order to dress the part.

The duvelty coats are of course the richest and it takes the richest to buy 'em. They come in wonderfully brilliant shades of rose, raspberry, emerald, ochre and sapphire blue.

Either in the long, loose, flaring models or the belted in effects they are very stunning indeed. They are becoming to all figures but they become yours only for several figures.

Other soft woolen materials that have the general effect of the duvelty in a speeding motor as on a galloping horse make up equally stunning and less costly togs.

One of gold color is cut a la maitre, with capacious buttoned hip pockets and smaller buttoned breast pockets. It has a wide buttoned belt, raglan sleeves and a wide rolling collar that can be worn open or turned up snug and close and tight, to fasten with a disk of jade the size of a silver dollar. This coat is lined throughout with the same shade of gold satin.

Many of the coats, however, like many people, hide a gay and frivolous interior under a sedate and drab exterior. Slate colored, plainly tailored coats adorned solely with self-toned buttons are lined with exotic crepe and silks of ultra futuristic designs as are most of the other tans and fawns.

Buttons galore you find on all of them and a Jenny model that is shown in serge, shepherd plaid wood, or natural pongee is buttoned straight down the front from the top of the choker collar to the bottom of the hem and shows further button symptoms on the deep cuffs, big slash hip pockets and the belt which only confines the front, the back being left loose and flaring.

The buttons on the serge models, which come in black, wine and navy are white bone disks. Those on the shepherd plaid are black bone and the pongee has bullet buttons of the pongee tone.

Besides her emerald coat Blanche Marie, just from Paris, brought over a chic loose coat of beige Jersey cloth with a deep band of navy taffeta around it, flaring hem, deep navy cuffs and roll collar and a deep rippling cape collar of the Jersey lined taffeta hanging down behind.

For wear with this she has an ideal motor hat made of two inch beige grosgrain ribbon sewed together in four rows from the little round center of the crown. The tiny roll brim is the ribbon doubled and a smart pleated cockade of the ribbon adorns one side.

Not only for motoring is this little crush hat charming as well as practical, but for all forms of travel, as it can be rolled up in a wad with the utmost abandon and tucked away in the oddest of odd corners when not desirable and tucked on the head at the oddest of odd angles.

All shades of green and yellow and crosses of the two like ginger chartreuse and citron are chosen colors of the racy racing motor maids this year and many a speed sister is all the mustard in a piquant automobile coat of the same seasoning and reasonable shade.

Fortunately for the speedometer these are all fast colors.

GATTI-CASAZZA GOES TO HUNT UP VOICE

(By United Press.)
NEW YORK, May 20.—Giulio Gatti-Casazza, general manager of the Metropolitan Opera, sailed today for Genoa aboard the Duca d'Aosta, to seek a new corp of operatic stars for next season. Some contracts expire this season with artists, that may not be renewed and substitutes must be found. Gatti-Casazza will comb war torn Europe for a couple of million dollars worth of voices. He is just as apt to find a $100,000 tenor serving soup in a restaurant, or a $50,000 barytone bawling the Italian equivalent of "Ra-a-ags, Bones and Bottles" as he is to find them to the manner born.

TRIES ESCAPE

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 20.—After being sentenced to serve two years in the penitentiary by Judge A. C. Backus in municipal court Friday for pouring carbolic acid over the body of her husband while he was asleep, Ellen Reise attempted to kill herself by jumping over the railing of the fifth floor of the city hall.

NATIONAL GUARD TO PRESENT THE
BATTLE OF MARNE

(By United Press.)
SHEEPSHEAD BAY, L. I., May 20.—Several hundred congressmen, senators and state and city officials from all over the United States are here today to see the historic battle of the Marne reproduced by 10,000 national guardsmen at Sheepshead Bay speedway.

Another big event of the seven day meet will be the 250 mile cavalry races of picked cavalry groups starting simultaneously from cities in New York, Vermont, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Massachusetts and other states and racing to New York city. It will be the first race of the kind ever staged.

Militia cavalry teams from many cities in the country have entries in this event of the tournament.
The points selected by the National guard from which the race will start are Washington, D. C.; Altoona, Penn.; Ithaca, N. Y.; Syracuse, N. Y.; Rutland, Vt.; Manchester, N. H.; and Boston. Entries have been received from all of these cities and, in addition, from Baltimore, Md.; Harrisburg, Penn., and Philadelphia.

The maximum distance to be covered in twenty-four hours, or a proportion thereof, will be seventy miles. There will be no change of horses, and the cavalrymen will carry the lightest possible equipment. Each will bear a message from the commander to the military authorities here, and the race will be so timed that the entrants will arrive at Sheepshead Bay between the hours of 3 and 6 p. m. on Monday, May 22, the third day of the tournament.

Major General Leonard Wood, U. S. A., commanding the department of the east, and his aide, Captain Gordon Johnson, have been asked to act as judges of the race, for which several handsome trophies have been offered.

Major Mitchell is lending his aid to the maneuvers, and Major Carl F. Hartman, U. S. A., in command of the signal corps at Governors Island, is co-operating with General O'Ryan in perfecting the aerial program.

Aerial flights will be directed by wireless telegraph, something, it is said, never attempted here before. A central station at Sheepshead Bay will keep in touch by wireless with the aeroplanes circling overhead.

POSTERS WARN
LONDON'S POOR

LONDON, May 20.—Government bill posters, who have plastered London with enormous signs urging the people to economize, have no respect for localities. In one of the most squalid and poverty stricken districts of London the following advice appears in letters five feet high:

"Don't use a motor car for pleasure. Don't buy superfluous clothing. Don't employ more servants than you need." In fashionable West End districts the posters are conspicuous for their absence. Trafalgar Square, near the heart of the official district, however, is liberally splashed with the warnings.

He that can boast of nothing but his illustrious ancestors, is like a potato, all that is good is under the ground.

Twas Rare Tree
And 2 Windfalls
Were Worth $30

LAKE GENEVA, Wis., May 20.—On the estate of the late R. T. Craine, near here, is a rare plum tree which stands in a large wood tub. It was imported from Europe and for many years has been one of the most highly prized of the many rare specimens in the hot houses on the place. Being raised under a glass, its fruit ripens early and is of exceptionally fine flavor.

A stranger was being shown over the estate last year by the gardener and stopped to look at the tree. Seeing two plums under the tree which had fallen from the branches, the stranger picked them up and ate them.

"Those are excellent plums," he said when he had finished. "What would you take for half a dozen to take home to my wife?"

"Great Scott!" exclaimed the gardener. "You don't want any more do you? You've already eaten $30 worth."

Mrs. Zeman weighs 110 pounds. She has three other children, Carl, 8; Frank, 4; and George, 3.

Surprised at the family increase, the Zemans have not yet thought of enough names to go around. The girls, however, will be called Julia and Rose.

VERSE and REVERSE

The Adventurers
(England was never made by her statesmen. England was made by her adventurers.—Gen. Gordon.)
They sit at home and they dream and dally,
Raking the embers of long-dead years—
But ye go down to the haunted valley,
Light-hearted pioneers.
They have forgotten that they ever were young.
They hear your songs as an unknown tongue.
But the flame of God through your spirit stirs.
Adventurers—O Adventurers!

They weigh and ponder, and shilly-shally.
Wielding the pen, who are past the sword—
But ye go down to the mystic valley,
That never was yet explored.
They brood over obsolete ways and means,
Their eyes confusing the grays and greens. * * *
But no tradition your vision blurs,
Adventurers—O Adventurers!

They tithe their herbs and they count their tally,
Choosing their words that a phrase may live—
But ye cast down in the hungry valley
All that a man can give.
They prophesy smoothly, with weary smile,
Fulfilling their feeble appointed while,
But death himself to your pride defers,
Adventurers—O Adventurers!

WEEK'S OFFERING IN MOVIELAND AS SEEN IN LA CROSSE

By N. D. Tevis

Coming Film Events Cast Brilliant Shadows—Big Time Features and New Order of Comedies Promised For Next Seven Days By Local Photoplay Theatres—Among Stars Who Will Entertain Are Henry Walthal, Ethel Barrymore, House Peters, Hazel Dawn, Norma Talmadge, H. B. Warner, Helen Holmes, William Farnum, Francis Ford, Edgar Selwin and "Napoleon" and "Sally"—Read All The Programs.

"CLOSEUPS"

HERE were few disappointments in the long list of photoplay features offered at local houses last week. As usual for the last few months the pictures have been among the very best obtainable, due perhaps to the fact that La Crosse is now in possession of practically all the "better film" manufacturers' outputs.

Henry Walthal—who seems to be working overtime these days—came to the Strand in "Beulah." Max Figman was clever in "The Truth Wagon," at the same house. De Wolfe Hopper in that to be remembered film, "Sunshine Dad," was the best of majestic offerings of the week. Naturally we've got to give it to F. N. Bushman and Beverly Bayne in "The Wall Between," which appeared at the Casino. "The Social Highwayman," and Fanny Ward in "For the Defense" were both big hits at the Bijou. "Emmy of Stork's Nest" was a delightful offering of the Dome.

The Casino announces the engagement of "Germany in the Trenches," one of the few really good war films which has ever been made. They give what purports to be a true account of what Germany is doing in her struggle against the concentrated powers, and the picture brings home the horrors of war as it is. They will be in La Crosse for three days, beginning May 31.

Miss Billie Burke in "Gloria's Romance" will be just one week away tomorrow. The picture will be shown in addition to the majestic regular Triangle program during the first three days of the week. "Gloria's Romance" will be told in twenty chapters, although George Kleine, who is producing the big photoplay, has arranged each chapter complete in itself.

The Bijou's announcement of Pauline Frederick in "Audrey," coming May 28 and 29, is one to be jotted down in a safe place in the memory, and likewise the announcement of Clara Kimball Young's heralded appearance in "The Feast of Life," scheduled for the two following days. Both are late pictures and highly praised productions.

Casino

"OVERALLS," a story of western construction camp life, featuring Rhea Mitchell and William Stowell, is the Casino attraction tonight.

Big Comedies Open

Both of the new comedies engaged for the Casino headline the program tomorrow. They are "Mutt and Jeff," the new animated cartoons by the celebrated Bud Fisher and "Jungle Comedies." Fun, it is apparent, is the paramount issue of the program, although Edna Mayo and Henry Walthal work in another chapter of "The Girl and the Game."

On Monday and Tuesday the Casino will bring to town the adored Ethel Barrymore in "The Kiss of Hate," a twentieth century model Metro production said to be one of Miss Barrymore's best screen attractions. This production is backed up with the fact that Miss Barrymore is scheduled to work in only four pictures each year for Metro, at a salary of $10,000. H. Cooper "Chiff," famed for his character of "Nobady" in "Everywoman," supports the international star. The story deals with persecution of the Jews.

Domedope

"A MODERN PAUL" is the feature attraction at the Dome tonight. The picture is a late release of the Selig company and said to be a top-notch. "Her Bad Quarter of an Hour" is the comedy for the wee sma' end of the week.

That Holmes Girl Again
Miss Helen Holmes—no she isn't dead yet, although it isn't her director's fault—appears in her twelfth chapter of "The Girl and the Game," a serial which has honestly earned the name of "thriller" if any picture ever did. "The Rough Neck," an Essanay, and "Bingles' Busy Day," complete the fun. The program is booked for tomorrow.

Selig news pictures will be a Dome attraction Monday in addition to "Sold to Satan," and "Ham Takes a Chance."

Ethel Barrymore, an old favorite of the stage, is starred in a Metro pictureplay, "A Final Judgment," coming to the Dome Tuesday.

"Love and Lather" are also pictures for the day.
"Billy Peter's Kid," a three-part "Vit" feature looks like the best of the Dome's program Wednesday. "The Desert Calls Its Own" and "Love and Lather" are also pictures for the day.

William Farnum, a Fox favorite, visits the north side house Thursday in "A Wonderful Adventure," a six-part photoplay.

Friday's program includes "From Out of the Past," "The Repentant" and "Pluck and Luck."

Star

EDITH ROBERTS, fourteen-year-old star of Universal pictures, supports Stanley Walpole, in the role of a soldier, in "The Crimson Trail," an "Imp" photoplay featuring the Star's program today and tomorrow. Edith Balfour, stage beauty, appears in "Royal Love," and Victor Potel in "The Gasoline Habit," a comedy, rounds out the bill.

"America Saved from War" is the title of the seventh chapter of the "Graft" serial, coming to the Star Monday and Tuesday. Harry Carey and Hobart Henley are the leading characters. Jane Novak is also in the cast. Bison presents a drama around the subject of smuggling, "The One Woman." The plot carries the movie fan to San Francisco's underworld—promising at least some action. Potel again appears in his comedy, "The Town that Tried to Come Back."

"Voice of the Tempter"
One version of what happens to a girl who marries for money is introduced in the Gold Seal offering of the Star for next Wednesday and Thursday, "Voice of the Tempter." Two Universal favorites are featured. A pretty story of old Erin is told in an accompanying production at the Star, "The Cry of Erin." Francis Ford is the attraction. The comedy is "Blue Blood and Black Skin."

"Daredevil of War" is an attraction next Friday at the Star offered by "Imp." Matt Moore and Jane Gale are starred in "Why Mrs. Kentworth Lied."

Strand

"JUNGLE COMEDIES" are on the Strand's bill of fare today with "Mutt and Jeff" funny pictures and Helen Holmes in "The Girl and the Game."

"The Birth of a Man"
Henry Walthal, who is playing in La Crosse now in "The Strange Case of Mary Page," will be starred at the Jackson street theater tomorrow in a Celebrated Players company feature, "The Birth of a Man." The plot concerns a man who, from a position of prominence as a professional, descends into the depths. A little child turns an interesting part of the story. Jackie Saunders comes to the Strand Monday in a popular picture, "Ill Starred Babbie." Babbie—the story goes—was born under an evil star, and lived her life in a mining district of the south. The play is full of that delightful atmosphere of outdoor life among rugged hills where men have a particular code of living. There is plenty of excitement in the picture.

Remember Montgomery and Stone in "The Wizard of Oz?" That delightful comedy has been acted for the movie camera and will be the attraction at the Strand Tuesday. The play is primarily one for children, but the grown-up "children" won't be amiss to see it.

"The Kiss of Hate"
Ethel Barrymore appears Wednesday in one of the biggest Metro featureplays of the year, "The Kiss of Hate."

Edgar Selwin is starred at the Jackson street theater the following day in "Pierre of the Plains." The story is a famous one by Sir Gilbert Parker, having to do with life in the Canadian northwest.

Miss Florence Roberts is presented at the Strand Friday in a dramatization of "Sapho."

Bijou

CONSTANCE COLLIER, Morosco star, is closing an engagement at the Bijou today in "The Code of Marcella Gray," a masterfully told film story.

"The Lost Bridgroom"
Famous Players present what will probably prove to be one of the most novel photoplays of the season at the Bijou tomorrow when John Barrymore is featured in "The Lost Bridgroom."

The play has the proportions of both a drama and a comedy, and it contains bits of both, although dramatic situations overbalance the laughable portions. Through an accident the bridegroom loses his memory. The story really begins at that point. Direction, photography and settings are said to be even above usual Paramount standard.

"The Fire Fighting Forest Rangers of Arizona"—that's right, read it again—is Burton Holmes' offering on the Paramount bill during the first three days of the week to come.

"The Closed Road"
House Peters and Barbara Tennant are to be starred in a World Film production at the Bijou next Wednesday and Thursday. The picture is

"CUTBACKS"

FINE ARTS slipped one over on the fan—by way of a gentle hint—during the showing of "Sunshine Dad," a majestic film featuring De Wolf Hopper this week. The sub-title was introducing the villain. It read something like this: For the benefit of those in the audience who are accustomed to reading the names of the characters out loud we will say that we have fooled you with the name of Count KOTTSCHEKOFF. You can't say it. You can only think it. Is there a second to the motion? We thought so!

Spotlight of favor seems to point to the following films for the week to come: "The Lost Bridgroom" and "The Closed Road"—Bijou. "Children in the House" and "The Beggar of Cawnpore"—Majestic. "A Final Judgment" and "A Wonderful Adventure"—Dome. "Jungle Comedies" and "Mutt and Jeff"—Casino. "The Voice of the Tempter"—Star. "The Birth of a Man" and "The Kiss of Hate"—Strand.

When the bad man of the story has been dispensed with and the hero and heroine have made up, and the plot rounds out to its logical end, the Paramount program at the Bijou flashes on the title:

"Pictographs."
Instead of beginning to hunt for the hat that has fallen from the patented hat-rack under the seat and shift around in preparation to donning coats and wraps, the audience only settles more comfortably in the comfortable seats.

That's the sign that "Pictographs" are more than "just something to fill out the program" and are making good. The pictures are the cleverest little series of consecutive surprises Paramount has ever placed before the public. Look 'em over some time.

Two unusual comedy series have been engaged for the Casino and Strand by Manager McWilliams. One is called "Jungle Comedies," and the other is a series of "Mutt and Jeff" cartoons—drawn on the screen—in front of your very eyes, ladies and gentlemen—by the celebrated Bud Fisher. The "Jungle Comedies" include Miss Lillian Brown/Leighton, and the two famed vaudeville chimpanzees, "Napoleon" and "Sally," called "the monkeys with brains." Both comedies right now are "crazes" of the larger cities, and are said to be of a brand new order—especially the latter. Both ought to be watched for with care. They will appear once a week.

"The Closed Road," said by able critics to be one of the most intense dramas of the day. Larger cities have booked and re-booked it. It is said to be a production appreciative to all classes of picture lovers. That's a lot to say about any moving picture, but Miss Tennant and Peters are stars who have "proven up" and whose past endeavors have been among the best on the screen. The film was directed by Maurice Tourneur, dean of European motionpicture men and has promise of being a sensation.

Hazel Dawn returns to the Third street theater the latter part of next week in "The Saleslady," a Paramount production. "Pictographs" are to appear on the bill.

Majestic

"CIVILIZATION'S CHILD," with Anna Lehr, and "A Rough Night," Keystone comedy offering, are closing at the Majestic tonight.

"Children in the House"
"The Children in the House," a play of wholesomeness, having to do with everyday folk in everyday situations, is offered by Fine Arts through Triangle as the Majestic's feature attraction for the opening of the week to come. Norma Talmadge is placed in the stellar role, and William Hinkley, as the bank cashier, who plays opposite Miss Talmadge, performs his part of the picture well. Kiddies have a big part in the production, and those used by Fine Arts are the cutest ever.

Joe Jackson is featured on the same program in "The Lion and the Girl," Keystone funny-film.
"Beggar of Cawnpore"
Thomas H. Ince offers an old favorite of the stage—H. B. Warner—at the Majestic the latter part of the week in "The Beggar of Cawnpore," a story just thrilling enough and with enough mysticism to fit Warner, who was at one time the melodramatic matinee idol of America. The tale has to do with a doctor in the British service in India, who resorts to morphine when left alone in the desert for weeks, and later becomes a victim of the drug. Then the physician becomes a beggar, but is finally brought to his senses through an uprising of natives. Some of the scenes are decidedly powerful.

Keystone comedies present an all-star cast in "The Bitter Pill," coming to the Majestic during the latter part of the week, also.

CIVIL WAR GOVERNOR DIED TRAGICALLY AFTER HIS ERRAND OF MERCY

LOCAL VETERANS RECALL DEATH OF HARVEY IN RIVER

Drowned on Way Home After Carrying Relief to the Badger Wounded in Battle of Shiloh

ON Memorial day Wisconsin will do grateful homage to those of her valiant sons, who in the Civil war gave up their lives in the service of the republic. She will deck with her choicest flowers the graves of 16,000 soldier boys, who in southern battlefields, in pest-ridden hospitals, in Confederate prison camps, cheerfully met the angel of death. She will remember, too, those thousands, who crippled or wasted by disease, returned to their northern homes to await a lingering death. Among all these she will not forget a quiet grave in Madison where sleeps Louis P. Harvey, her high-minded governor, who in the spring of 1862, while on an errand of mercy to the southland, lost his life among her troops.

The memory of Governor Harvey is particularly green in the minds of Henry Vincent and Samuel Guertin, two of the Grand Army men who will march in the line of veterans here May 30. Samuel Guertin was one of the boys wounded at Shiloh, to whom the martyred governor brought cheer and home comfort on his ill-fated visit to the camp. Henry Vincent was on the boat from which Governor Harvey fell to his death in the Mississippi, and for the next three days was on detail to search for his body.

Followed Battle of Shiloh
The battle of Shiloh, the greatest and bloodiest of which had ever been fought on American soil, was the occasion for Governor Harvey's ill-ated journey. General Grant, who commanded the western army, had not anticipated the clash; he had made for it no unusual medical preparations. When during those two dreadful April days of 1862 thousands of wounded and maimed soldiers streamed into hurriedly equipped hospitals, the medical service was utterly overwhelmed. Almost as painful as the battle itself were the sanitary conditions that followed. Wisconsin soldiers had suffered with particular severity in the fight. Two regiments, the Sixteenth and the Eighteenth infantry, had been virtually cut to pieces. Lack of medical attention and insufficient medical supplies added each hour to the long toll of Badger dead.

Intelligence of the battle was flashed to Wisconsin by telegraph. At once the great-hearted Harvey set on foot an expedition of relief. To every part of the state he sent for contributions and aid. In less than twenty-four hours he was on his way to the scene of carnage with a corps of medical assistants and quantities of bandages, medicines, and delicacies for the wounded. At Chicago he found a full carload of supplies—sixty-one boxes from Milwaukee, thirteen from Madison, nine from Janesville, six from Beloit, ninety in all, with sanitary supplies of every description.

At Cairo, Mound City, Paducah, and Pittsburgh Landing the expedition found sick and wounded Wisconsin soldiers. Wherever he went the governor brought to these stricken volunteers messages of hope and cheer. "It would have moved a heart of stone to witness the interviews between the governor and our wounded heroes. There was something more than formality about these visits, and the men knew it by sure instinct." At Pittsburgh Landing the "news of the governor's arrival spread as if by magic, and at every house those who could stand clustered around him, and those who had not raised their heads for days, sat up, their faces aglow with gratitude for the kind looks, and words and acts, which showed the governor's tender care of them." At times these scenes were so affecting that even the governor's self-control failed him, and he could not trust himself to talk. To his wife, Governor Harvey wrote: "Yesterday was the day of my life. Thank God for the impulse that brought me here. I am well, and have done more good by coming than I can well tell you."

Drowned on Way Home
His errand of mercy fulfilled the governor turned his steps homeward, followed by the blessings of every sick and wounded Wisconsin soldier in Grant's army. As he was passing at night from one boat to another at Savannah on the Mississippi, he stumbled and fell into the dark waters beneath. A member of his party plunged in after him, but to no avail. He sank to rise no more. His body was found a few days later sixty miles down the river whither it had been carried by the powerful current. It was taken in state to Madison, where in beautiful Forest Hill cemetery it was laid to rest.

"We were coming back to Savannah after the battle," said Mr. Vincent recently, recalling the governor's death. "There was just the fourteenth Wisconsin on the boat—what was left of us. That had been a hot fight, on the fifth and sixth of April. It was the evening of the seventh when we were sent back to Savannah, leaving our wounded near the battlefield eight miles down river."

"We had just disembarked, and were lining the bank when the governor's party came off the boat. There was another boat standing between our transport and the shore, with just a foot or two between them. It was dark, and the torchlight was uncertain. Governor Harvey missed his footing and went between the boats."

Searched For Body
"He didn't have time to say a word—just vanished. They tried to find him, but he had got under the boat and drowned. It was supposed, without ever coming to the surface. All night we worked, looking for the body, and next day we went miles down the river, searching for his body. We fired a cannon hundreds of times, trying to bring the body up, but at last we gave it up."

"Nobody felt any worse over the accident than the Fourteenth infantry. The governor had been mighty good to those of our comrades who were hit at Shiloh, and since he was coming back with us, we felt in a way responsible for his safety."

The tragic death of this excellent executive cast Wisconsin into deepest mourning. Public and private dwellings were draped; loyal men sadly shook their heads at this new disaster. By official proclamation a special day was set aside for prayer and commemoration. The wife of the governor was for a time beside herself with grief. The shock, her friends feared, was affecting her mind. However, the example of her husband led her to rally her strength in order that she might carry on the work that he had begun. She became an army nurse, ministering especially to Wisconsin's sick and wounded. So earnestly did she labor in their behalf that before many months she was known throughout the western army as the Florence Nightingale of Wisconsin.

End of the Campaign
"No more shall I hear his footsteps on yonder walk just as the clock strikes 8."

"Gracious, Jeannette!"

"And the old parlor light will never burn low for him again."

"You don't mean it?"

"I do; and furthermore, he will never sit on this sofa three nights a week and call me pet names, as he has been doing for two years."

"I am astonished."

"And tonight I am going to burn all the old love letters in my chest of drawers."

"But why? Are you going to discard him?"

"Discard him? Why, you goose, I am going to marry him!"

No Doubt About It
An east side teacher was endeavoring to elucidate some of the simpler phenomena of electricity, and at the close of her little lecture said sweetly:

"Can any of you children give me the name of some nonconductor and tell about it in a few words?"

A sharp-eyed urchin exclaimed: "I kin, teacher, Sam Holley's old man is one. They was a spoller on his car seen him knock down a fare. Old Holley's a nonconductor ever since."

LIGHTED DOOR ON WAY TO RIVER GATE OF LIFE AND SUCCESS TO HIM

CHICAGOAN DATES TRIP FROM GUTTER TO MISSION VISIT

Just From Straight-jacket at La Crosse Hospital He Was Bound For the Bridge

ON a freezing night during the latter part of last November, a man walked dejectedly down Pearl street. The river was his goal. As he rounded the corner from Third street the partially frozen stream appeared to him as a haven. He was forced to pass the door of the Rescue Mission. An evening gospel service was going on and he heard singing.

He hesitated.

The man may have had a "streak of yellow" in his make up. But it is more probable that the booming bass voice of Superintendent D. C. Dewey, rising above the rest, shunted back into his dulled mind the memory of a kind old preacher up in Michigan in the man's youth, and the picture was made startlingly clear because he thought he was spending his last five minutes on earth.

His Turning Point
He turned back, opened the mission door slowly, and took a seat in the last row of chairs.

That was the man's turning point. His name is C. R. Krathwohl. He resides in Chicago and is a prosperous draughtsman and stove designer, and the head of one of the happiest families in the Windy City. Recently he became a member of a Chicago church.

When Krathwohl sat down in the rear of the mission chapel, sneered slightly at the scripture quotations on the mission walls, and ridiculed to himself the dozen or so men who were testifying, he was a graduated down-and-out.

In short, he had deserted his family—through drink—had lost his job—several jobs—and finally, after tramping about the country, Krathwohl landed in a straight jacket at the La Crosse hospital. "John Barleycorn" had him floored—to use Krathwohl's own words. He worked for a time in La Crosse, after that, and solemnly pledged himself that he'd quit for good. It was only a few days, however, before he again fell. After spending a night in central police station, Krathwohl made up his mind to stop trying. The probabilities are that he would never have been heard from again if the little mission on Pearl street had not intervened in his path to the Mississippi.

Credits Mission
Krathwohl's story is a unique one. He gives the credit for what he calls his "resurrection" to the mission.

"I was born in 1869, of Christian parents," Krathwohl says. "My early training was the very best, but for some reason I always doubted a Divinity. Then at the age of 10 I was placed among strangers. Probably through their worldly tendencies my doubts were strengthened into a disbelief which I kept until after the service in the Rescue Mission was over that night."

"At the age of 19 I became publisher of a small newspaper in Michigan. At about that time my ego rose to a high pitch and I began flirting with the Devil's chief agent, 'John Barleycorn.' The story which I might relate of what followed is the usual one. At first I drank to the 'social' taste of liquor. These social drinks soon developed an appetite—especially for the effect the stuff had upon me. Within three years I was in the midst of stage number three—the stage that requires a certain number of 'fingers' to key you up to the right pitch in order to work. Every day it took a little more and a little more, and I found that the ancient Roman galley slave had nothing on me, when it came to being in bondage. And the fellow who handled the whip—old John Barleycorn—was the worst taskmaster I ever expect to meet.

Cures No Use
"Then I tried several 'cures.' I came out of a sanitarium with the same thirst as when I entered. In 1903 I literally swallowed my newspaper plant. I sold it for the proverbial pittance, and drank up the song. The proceeds of several inventions I had perfected between times on the newspaper also went the same way. Then my friends deserted me. I had spent the last nickel for a drink of cheap whiskey when I secured a job in Chicago. I stayed sober for a time. The pity of the situation then was that I made myself believe I could manage the drink, and I brought my family to Chicago. Then the 'booze' grabbed me again, and I spent all I had earned in the saloons along South State street—one of the chief 'ports of missing men.'"

"I pawned the few tools I had

TRIP FROM GUTTER
TO MISSION VISIT

Just From Straight-jacket at La Crosse Hospital He Was Bound For the Bridge

Left for carfare to Freeport, Ill. John Barclay rode in the seat opposite me. After another hopeless tussle with him in that city, I devoted myself to the box-car route, and came to La Crosse with my hat as a pillow and with a bottle of "red eye" as my sole companion.

Tore Up Straight Jacket
"I vainly tried to "back up" again, and secured a position, but it was only a short while until I reached the point where a straight jacket at the La Crosse hospital was required to hold me down. You will realize to some degree what I "saw" when I say that I became so desperate that a new set of straps was necessary to replace the set that I tore as though they were wrapping twine. In the midst of my agony I heard a kind doctor say: "He can't last much longer if this keeps up." Then he gave me another dose of something to quiet me. I recovered somehow or other and then I made up my mind that there was no use in trying to beat the game. I sauntered down town from the hospital and walked into the first saloon. The bartender "stood me off." That night I slept in the police station. I was entirely through with the proposition of life."

"Jack" Eveland gave the evening sermon shortly after Krathwohl walked into the mission on the following evening. Eveland had also strolled through the front door of the mission two years prior in similar circumstances. Krathwohl's Eveland knew he was talking to just such men as Krathwohl and he directed his words to them. He didn't mince them. It was a straight-from-the-shoulder sort of talk he gave, a testimonial of his own uplifting; how it came about and how those men in the mission chairs could do the same thing. "Jack" also injected "hell fire" and promise of heaven—on earth—into his talk, and it got Krathwohl where he lived.

He Hit the Trail
Krathwohl did a lot of thinking, and then he says, the light came to him.

Eveland finished and Superintendent Dewey arose.

"Come on up here, you fellows in sin back there," he said. "Come on up here to the altar and make it up with God. He'll take you back."

Krathwohl struck the "sawdust trail" made famous by Billy Sunday, and he says in a recent letter written on his own desk in his own little home in Chicago that the "trail" made good.

THIS IS THE TOLL

BERLIN, via wireless to Sayville, L. I., May 20.—From January 1 to May 1, 1916, German and Austrian submarines have sunk enemy ships with a total tonnage of 671,500. It was semi-officially stated yesterday.

LONG TRIP MADE TO SPARTA AND
BACK IN ELECTRIC

A few days ago C. W. Long of the Anderson Electric Car Co., of Detroit, Mich., and A. M. Tourtellotte of the Law Auto Co., agents for the Detroit Electric car, drove to Sparta and returned on the one charge in a new Detroit Electric.

The car left La Crosse at 7 a. m. and arrived in Sparta at Hotel Sidney at 9:45 a. m., after having stopped thirty minutes at the farm of John McKinley between West Salem and Bangor. Therefore the actual running time was two hours and fifteen minutes. The route taken was the north road to West Salem over "Nigger Nathan Hill" then via the south road to Bangor, thence by the north road to Sparta.

In returning the car left Sparta at 5 p. m., and arrived at West Salem at 6:15, where forty-five minutes were taken for supper, arriving at La Crosse at 8:10 p. m., actual running time, two hours and twenty-five minutes over the same route.

Heretofore it has been the general, if not the universal opinion, that the electric car could be used only in towns where the streets were level and were paved. This trip explodes this idea as no other trip would, for the reason that the road is a series of hills and some of the steepest in this locality. Besides, there is an abundance of sand and deep sand hills. In addition to the general road condition, a stretch of about one mile was encountered where the road crew was at work grading the road.

While in Sparta fifteen miles were consumed in giving demonstrations, thus making the total distance traveled seventy-one and five-tenths miles. Be it remembered this was done on one charge, in a new car that had traveled only thirty-six miles prior to this trip, in other words, a car that was stiff and with batteries that were new.

In addition to the road conditions a stiff wind was encountered on the return trip which required a pull of from 10 to 20 amperes above normal. According to the government report this wind had a velocity of nineteen miles maximum.

Therefore this trip demonstrated that the Detroit Electric is capable of coping with any road conditions that are found in this section of the country with the advantage of traveling in comfort and ease. The trip was not made as a speed trial as third speed was used the entire time and on a battery which did not have an overcharge. By using fourth and fifth speeds this time could be reduced but when one considers the road conditions, the average of twelve miles an hour on third speed for the entire trip may be considered a very good performance.

WANTS INTERNATIONAL COURT

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Suggestion by the United States of the creation of a commission to thresh out peace terms was advocated Friday by a high administration official. He declared that while the warring powers apparently are unwilling at present to conclude peace, such a commission at least could crystallize the peace sentiment of the two sides.

ALUMNI ASKED TO BUILD OWN SEATS
AT NEW STADIUM

MADISON, Wis., May 20.—(Special.)—Alumni and friends of the university are offered a plan by the University of Wisconsin Stadium committee to assist in building the new concrete grand stand on Camp Randall. People are allowed to contribute $4 for a seat, which will be reserved for them for five years. That is the person has the right to have his seat by paying about 50 cents extra, notice that he will use it to be given at least two weeks before any of the large games.

The sum of $4 will build a concrete seat. The legislature of 1915 realizing that it was poor business to continue to rent seats, appropriated $20,000 for the grading of a new field and the erection of as many seats as could be put up.

The grading of the field for the seats will cost $8,000, leaving $12,000 to be applied in the construction of concrete seats. These 3,000 seats, will according to the official statement issued by the stadium committee, accommodate but 20 per cent of the needed accommodations for next year.

"It is thought by those interested in the project that if the alumni and friends of the university were to raise $21,000 or more for the completion of this 10,000 seat section, the next legislature could be persuaded to make an appropriation for the next 10,000 seats," says the letter sent out by the committee today.

JUST ORDINARY OL' PICKEREL

My Dear Buck:

If there is one of the fish family that we remember from the knee-pants and bent-pin stage of the fishing game, it sure must be Ol' Judge Pickerel and the young "picks." It certainly made your heart do a double-quick and started the cold creeps up your spine, the first time you hooked a pickerel, after a kindergarten course on chubs and sunnies. You probably had a long cane pole or a young sapling cut from the nearby wooded shore; anyway, from that time on you realized that there was "some sport" to the game. Since then, of course, the ol' pickerel has been sorta dropped into the discard, and it takes trout, bass or muskie, perhaps, to start the joy trips up along your vertebrae. But let me tip you off straight, "Buck," there's many a good fighter left in the pickerel outfit, regardless of the many slurs cast upon his fighting qualities by some of the ultra-exclusive high-brows in the angling derby.

Find Pickerel Most Anywhere

The pickerel is one of the fish that you can fish for nearly anywhere, and you don't have to make a five hundred to one thousand mile trip to his "home grounds." He is a common, ordinary cuss that can pick up a living on next to nothing, and at the same time raise a mighty big family. In nearby "civilized" waters he will even make a sure-enough professional fisherman sit up and notice at his ability to evade bait and make said fisherman use all his skill and wits to induce him to take the lure. The more he is fished for the wiser he gets, and to land a few fair-sized pickerel in much-fished waters takes keen work, more so than for the games fish in the usual fish haunts of the North woods. As a rule the pickerel found in local waters does not grow to excess size, say an average of two or three pounds. Some are larger, of course, but not the general run.

Where the Pickerel Hangs Out

The pickerel from the running streams, like all other fish, puts up the best fight, while those from the warmer waters of the lakes and sluggish streams are dull and slow fighters. The pickerel is found in nearly all rivers and lakes or ponds, his preference being for shallow, grassy lakes. His main hunting grounds are along the edge of lily and weed beds and on the outskirts of the grassy growth that is often called "pickerel grass." Here he lurks, waiting for the smaller fish to swim past, often striking his prey with a snap of the jaws that cuts the victim in twain. He is a sure-enough barbarian, and is a destroyer of the weaker fishes, all of which points to the fact that he will be with us for many a day. He is vicious to the core, and at times will strike a trolling spoon with force enough to bend it double. In spring-fed lakes he is often found around the spring-holes, and deep fishing here will bring him out. You can feel reasonably sure of landing him any time from the first of the season to the windup, and then take a rap at him through the ice in winter.

Needs Dentist in August

August is about the poorest month for pickerel fishing, caused, no doubt, by the soreness of the gums, as claimed by many of the old-timers. The "muskie," a cousin of the pickerel, loses his teeth in August, while the pickerel itself has a swelling of the gums during dog-days that does not put him in a humor to bite on anything. Late September and early October is about the best all-round pickerel season, at which time he is found in the shallows, at the mouth of outlets or inlets, where the feed is good.

Troll and Cast For Him

Although trolling is the surest method of landing the pickerel, much sport can be had by casting for him, using light bass tackle. A weedless hook with a small frog, shiner or minnow for bait, and a single spinner is all you need. Row along the weedbeds, about seventy-five feet out and cast in toward the edge, landing your bait about five from the edge. Give the pickerel a little time before striking as he grabs the live bait and darts back to his lair, there to turn it around in his mouth and swallow it head first. Strike sharply and row away from the weeds. Bear this in mind: he may come up to the boat with ease, but he makes his big effort for liberty after you bring him up to the boat.

The usual way to get him is by trolling with a spoon or spinner. Take a No. 4 1/2 tandem Slim Eli Hildebrandt Spinner with a treble hook bucktailed or feathered, or a No. 4 Skinner spoon and you have an excellent trolling rig. A chunk of pork rind adds to the attractiveness of the lure.

Whatever the standing of the pickerel in the sport of fishing, it can be said to his credit that he has gladdened the heart of many fishermen who could not take the time or lay out the wad of coin necessary to go after the gamier fish in their native haunts, and for this I say, give the devil his due, although a good-sized pickerel on very light tackle is not to be sneezed at, nor is getting him in much-fished waters a child's trick.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Question—What is a good lure for wall-eyed pike, how is the best way to fish for them and the best time to fish?—W. A. G. Answer—Try any bass lure, plug or spoon, also a fair sized minnow in an Archer spinner makes a good bait. Troll for them letting bait down close to the bottom, troll slowly. Early morning and late afternoon and evening best time.

Question—What sized line should I use with a steel fly rod. I am using a size E now?—J. D. Answer—For steel fly-casting rod I suggest that you try a size C line as better results will be had with the heavier line. A lot of difficulty found in casting with a steel fly rod is caused by the use of too light a line.

Question—How often should a reel be oiled?—M. M. S. Answer—Oil your reel every day if used for bait casting. Don't drown it with oil, a drop at each bearing is plenty and all surplus oil should be wiped off as it collects dust and sand.

Question—How do numbers and letters compare as regards the size of enameled lines?—A. C. J. Answer—No. 6—H. No. 5—G. No. 4—F. No. 3—E. No. 2—D. No. 1—C.

CASHTON DIAMOND LIGHTS MEET THE NELSONS SUNDAY

With four La Crosse men in the lineup, Cashton tomorrow battles the Nelson Clothing company at league park in their first game in La Crosse this year.

Fitzki, who started the season for the Athletics, has joined the hurling staff of the villagers. Bell, a La Crosse product, assumes the head of the pitching list and Billy Wais, formerly with the Winona team of the northern league, will handle the shoots. Kabat, former Nelson, is in the Cashton infield, while Bartels, former Clothier complements Fitzki and Bell.

Sickles, in all probability, will do the slab work for the Nelsons.
